The Great Banking House of Duncan, Sherman & Co. Goes Under. New York, July 27.--The well known banking house of Duncan, Sherman & Co. suspended payment this morning, causing great excitement in financial circles.

A STATEMENT. NEW YORK, July 27.--The following statement from Messrs. Duncan, Sherman & Co. was read at the Stock Exchange, and is published in the afternoon papers:

"A careful examination of our business and affairs shows us, most unexpectedly, that through losses and misfortunes our available assets are so reduced that we are compelled to go into liquidation. We reach this conclusion with the deepest regret, but the fact that up to the latest moment our most unexampled credit remained unimpaired was a factor which has compelled us to continue our business to hazard new obligations and incur new consequences which we were unwilling to assume. For the protection of all our creditors, without distinction or preference, we have this day made a general assignment to the Honorable William D. Shipman, of this city, whose address for all matters connected with our affairs will be at our late banking house, No. 11 Nassau street. (Signed) 'DUNCAN, SHERMAN & CO.'"

The Securities of Ex-Treasurer Gage--New Silver Mines, etc. CHICAGO, July 27.--The case wherein the City of Chicago sues Ex-City Treasurer, David A. Gage, and the securities on his bond to recover one million dollars which he failed to pay over at the expiration of his official term, was decided yesterday. The points passed upon were very important, involving the entire question of the liability of the bondsmen. The defendants pleaded that they were not liable because after the bonds were executed the city, through the Common Council, authorized and allowed said Gage to loan the city's money and received the interest therefor, and that this permission, on the part of the city, very much increased the Treasurer's liability, and as it was done without the consent of the bondsmen, they were thereby discharged from the obligation of the bond. Judge Booth held that the city never gave its consent in the manner required by law, and the other pleas of the defendants made with a view to escaping liability on the bond were all void. He decided that the sureties on Gage's official bond were responsible and must make good the default. The case will doubtless be taken to the Supreme Court.

Messrs. Sandre and H. H. Stafford, of Marquette, Michigan, are in this city to-day, having just arrived from that region on an important business in connection with the silver mining and railroad interests. "A day or two before starting on the late Western trip I met the Superintendent of the club at his request, and the conversation that ensued is in substance as follows:

"He desired to close a contract with me for one or three years' engagement, offering me his reason for this. I was about going West, and might receive flattering inducements to go there; that the Boston club was desirous of retaining me, but at the same time he gave me to understand that the salary was as high as they could afford to pay, and did not propose to compete with fancy Western players.

"The only promise I made him, or any one else, was to the effect that I would not receive or open any negotiations with any club managers on that trip, which promises I have kept. Nearly a month after my return, during which time nothing was said to me, I met the Manager of the Chicago Club in Boston, who offered me the fancy price the Boston Club did not propose to pay, and under the circumstances, I did not feel like forcing the Boston Club, as they claim others have done, to pay me any fancy price for playing ball.

"Catches" at Saratoga. A correspondent of the New York Commercial Advertiser writing from Saratoga Springs, says:

The conventional match-making mamma, with her troop of lovely daughters, is here, lying in wait for the foreign Count who was born in Bellevue Hospital and lives on Bleeker street.

I was this noon consulted by one of these grand duchesses on the subject of "catches." She wanted to know which one, in my opinion, she should "go for" first.

I suggested Vice President Wilson. "No, indeed," she exclaimed, "His term of office expires in a year; I don't wish any of my daughters to come so soon to want."
